ELK PITCHING AND STICKWORK DO UP KNIGHTS

Antlered Herd Trample Columbus Host at Traction Park; Score, 12 to 9; Hutchinson's Twirling a Feature.

By a score of 12 to 9, the Elks won from the Knights of Columbus in their annual meeting on the diamond yesterday. The much heralded game developed a spirited contest, in which the antlered gamblers shaded the plumed posturers. The Knights excelled in one thing notably, however, and that was basestealing. They were rubber barons on the paths, cribbing eight pillows.

In one inning the fleet jousters scored three runs without a hit.

The Elks rammed the ball around more than the Knights, the hits totaling 18 to 11, respectively. The Knights used three twirlers, Chaves, Murphy and Letarte, but none of them distressed the butters enormously. Only five of the charging Elks were felled at the plate, while thirteen Knights thrashed lances in vain against the rushing ball. Hutchinson did it all by himself with his little trajectory.

Hutchinson's pitching was a feature of the game. It was not merely lightning, but solid gold as far as the needs of the occasion demanded. Hutch hit, too. Meares and Wilson shared twirling honors with him.

The game was played at Traction park before 200 people. Statistical review:

The scattering of the lost tribes of Israel was nothing compared to the scattering of the old Cubs. Not a member of that old machine is playing now with a pal of the old days. They have been dispersed through six leagues, ranging from the majors to the bush. Schultz alone is left of the old 1906 regulars. Sheppard is in the American association, Hoffman in the Pacific Coast, and McGraw in the National. The old machine is with Brooklyn.

Kling has retired. Of the old Cub guard nine are still in baseball—six with the major league clubs—yet
